CHINESE TROOPS REPORTED TO HAVE INVADED THAILAND

Appeal for Action
Issued by Dutch to Lessen Java Peril

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Editor

Eye-witness accounts of fighting in lower Sumatra reported today that fierce native soldiers of the Dutch Indies, armed only with pistols and swords, were inflicting heavy casualties on the Japanese and proving more than a match for the invaders armed with submachine guns in bloody hand-to-hand fighting.

The defenders were reported battling desperately to block the Japanese drive toward Sunda Strait, the narrow passageway between Sumatra and Java.

With "zero hour" near in the battle for Java, Lieut.-Gov. Hubertus Van Mook of the Dutch East Indies appealed to the United Nations today to take the offensive, search out the enemy and fight, or risk losing the war.

Even as Van Mook spoke, the all-India radio broadcast unconfirmed reports that Chinese troops had invaded Japanese-dominated Thailand, striking the first land counter blow by the United Nations since the war began December 7.

Thailand was a major jumping-off point for the Japanese invasions of Malaya and Burma.

The all-India broadcast, quoting a Rangoon communiqué, said that according to "a report as yet unconfirmed," Chinese troops on the North Burma front had crossed the Thailand border and were battling toward Chiangmai, 300 miles north of Bangkok, the Thai capital.

LONDON HINTS
TURKEY EARLY
NAZI OBJECTIVE

By the Associated Press

A hint that Britain may be heavily reinforcing her armies in the Middle East, possibly to combat a German thrust into Turkey this spring, was dropped by the London admiralty today with the disclosure that "certain convoys" had been safely escorted through the Mediterranean.

The admiralty said the operations, apparently on a big scale, were carried out between February 13 and 16 with the loss of only two merchant craft.

"The enemy made great efforts to inflict serious loss and published the usual exaggerated claims," an admiralty communiqué said.

Recent dispatches from the Balkans have told of large numbers of German troops massing in Bulgaria, Greece and Greek Islands—all potential springboards for a German invasion of Turkey, the "land bridge" between Europe and the Middle East.

Malta, under increasingly violent assault by German and Italian planes in recent weeks, would be a sharp thorn on the flank of any Axis drive into Turkey or across the Mediterranean to Egypt and the Levant states.

While the Mediterranean stirred with new activity, bolstering forecasts that the Middle East would become a major theatre of the world-wide conflict this spring, Russia's armies surged ever deeper into German winter defense lines.

Stockholm dispatches reported that a Soviet army corps, including six Polish divisions, had advanced to within 50 miles of old Poland on a drive "with gathering momentum" (Turn to Page Nine)

RESIGNS JOB IN
O. C. D. PROGRAM

Washington, Feb. 18—(P)—The Office of Civilian Defense announced today it had accepted the offer of Mayris Chaney, blonde dancer-protege of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, to resign her $4,600 OCD job if it felt "the best interests of our physical fitness program" can thereby be served.

Miss Chaney, whose appointment in charge of children's activities in the OCD physical fitness division brought criticism from congress to eliminate "trills" from OCD, made her offer in a letter to James M. Landis, director of OCD.

Landis' office said her offer was being accepted "with no comment."

The physical fitness division is part of the community and volunteer section over which Mrs. Roosevelt, as assistant civilian defense director, presides.

SENIOR U. S. OFFICER IS REPORTED KILLED

London, Feb. 18—(P)—A senior American officer is believed to have been killed in the crash of a British aircraft in the sea en route to the United Kingdom.

The plane was reported to have crashed off the southeast coast of England and it was feared that all passengers and crew, including the American officer and the British personnel, were lost.

SPEEDY VOTE ON REDISTRICTING

Washington, Feb. 18—(P)—Democrats in the house today pushed toward a speedy vote a bipartisan congressional re-apportionment bill, responding quickly to Governor James' demand for a brief, business-like session.

Seizing the initiative, American fighter planes helped keep the invaders at bay.

United Nations headquarters said American pilots aiding in the defense of Java attacked a Japanese-held airfield in lower Sumatra and shot down four enemy planes without loss to themselves.

Dutch bombers shot down two more.

Five Japanese bombers were shot down in an attack on the big Allied naval base at Soerabaja, Java, this morning; it was announced.

A combined American-Dutch bomber force sank a large Japanese transport, scored havoc on two others and rained havoc on a fleet of troop-laden barges.

N. E. I. headquarters said Dutch troops were still fighting grimly against Japanese forces in Borneo just above Java, but acknowledged that "fighting has almost come to an end" on the Japanese-overrun Celebes Peninsula in northeast Celebes Island.

While the Far Pacific conflict headed into its most critical phase, the war came closer home to Americans with President Roosevelt's (Turn to Page Nine)

MORE ATTACKS IN THE ATLANTIC REVEALED

Washington, Feb. 18—(P)—The navy department announced today that the tanker E. H. Blum "was damaged" off the Atlantic coast Monday, February 16.

The navy gave no information as to why the damage was inflicted or its extent.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 18—(P)—Two torpedoes from an Axis submarine sank the Brazilian passenger-cargo steamer Buarque off the Virginia coast Sunday morning in the first hostile act against the South American republic since diplomatic relations were severed January 28 with Germany, Italy and Japan.

The navy announced the sinking last night shortly after two rescue boats had brought in 37 survivors, bringing to 83 the number of persons saved.

BULLETINS

Washington, Feb. 18—(P)—Letters which indicated an interest in United States Pacific defenses and listed data regarding defense industries were introduced in federal court today by U. S. Attorney Mathias Correa, who named Kurt Frederick Ludwig, accused master Nazi spy, as the writer.

Ludwig and five others are on trial charged with conspiracy to violate the espionage act and specifically with gathering and transmitting vital defense information to the German reich and its agents.

Letters seized by British censors at Bermuda, addressed to alleged German agents in Spain and Portugal, were identified by Charles Appel, FBI expert on disputed documents, as having been written by Ludwig or typed on Ludwig's typewriter.

Washington, Feb. 18—(P)—A record-smashing $32,070,901,900 war appropriation moved to the senate today with a 371 to 0 endorsement by the house under committee warning that supplies must be ready against a supreme Axis offensive this spring.

House appropriations committee members, introducing the measure yesterday, spoke against a backlog of information furnished privately by high ranking army officials and urged quick action on the bill, which includes outlays for transportation and other immediate items as well as for long range production. The house passed the bill with only four hours debate.

With similar unanimity yesterday the senate passed by voice vote a $162,806,854 deficiency measure, including $100,000,000 for civilian defense against air raids, and returned it to the house for action on minor amendments.

In that bill, the senate left intact those restrictions against use of any part of the protection fund for "fan dancing, street shows or other public entertainment" or for the treasury's $80,000 Donald Duck income tax cartoon film.

Shortly before passage, the house rejected by a standing vote of 98 to 28 an amendment by Rep. Smith (D-Va.) which would have banned the closed shop in industry, and jurisdictional and sympathy strikes.

As the bill was introduced, the senate left intact those restrictions against use of any part of the protection fund for "fan dancing, street shows or other public entertainment" or for the treasury's $80,000 Donald Duck income tax cartoon film.

Pittsburgh, Feb. 18—(P)—Sammy Angott, lightweight boxing champion, was released early today after he had been detained several hours for questioning about his association with two men charged with the $7,537 robbery of the Stanley Theatre here Monday.

Inspector of Detectives Walter Monaghan said he was "convinced" Angott had no connection with the robbery of the theatre and Police Captain Frank T. McQuade added that the Washington, Pa., fighter was "apparently the victim of a series of circumstances."

McQuade said Angott was questioned because the two suspects, booked as Vincent Deluca, 48, and Freddie Bucknell alias Brownell, both of New York told Monaghan (Turn to Page Six)

Washington, Feb. 18—(P)—Former ambassador William C. Bullitt will seek the Pennsylvania Democratic gubernatorial nomination if President Roosevelt wishes.

He said as much after disclosing that the president had suggested party leaders compromise on the diplomat as their standard bearer in this year's election.

Democratic chieftains in Pennsylvania, however, disclaimed any knowledge of Mr. Roosevelt taking a hand in the matter and expressed doubt that he had done so.

Former Governor George H. Earle expressed no opinion on the reports, but declared at his Havre de Grace home that "the Democratic party could not pick a better candidate."

Approached on his availability as a candidate, Bullitt declared "I am working on something I am intensely interested in." He had been pressed for a direct answer, (Turn to Page Six)

Unprecedented Grant of Power to State Council
Of Defense to Suspend or Modify State Law Interfering With War's Effort,
One of Main Requests in Governor's Message

REDISTRICTING BILL GETS FIRST ATTENTION

Harrisburg, Feb. 18—(P)—An unprecedented grant of power to the State Council of Defense to suspend or modify any state law interfering with Pennsylvania's war effort was sought from the legislature today by Governor James.

"This is a new step for this Commonwealth to take, and I am recommending it only because it offers the only solution in sight to matters of extreme urgency," the governor told the assembly last night in presenting his recommendations.

The 11-member Defense Council, composed mostly of top-ranking state officials and leaders of the assembly, was set up by the 1941 legislature to organize and direct the Keystone State's defense effort. The governor is its chairman.

"Almost every day," James told the legislature, "we find that some war program, which we are asked to undertake, runs counter to some provision in the statutes which may have been fine in times of peace, but which certainly did not contemplate our present national emergency."

The broad suspending power, the governor added, should be lodged in the Defense Council because it "consists largely of public officials who are members by reason of the positions they hold."

Called primarily to handle the ticklish political problem of redistricting the state so that the congressional delegation is reduced from 34 to 33, as required by the 1940 census, the general assembly upon convening yesterday was handed a 17-point war-time program to work on yesterday by Governor James.

He coupled his suggestions with a blunt warning that this war-time special session is "not the time nor the place for blowing political bugles."

As the legislature quickly settled down to work—the house pushed ahead the reapportionment measure worked out by the joint committee which took over when the regular 1941 session couldn't agree—it was conceded that the state Defense Council (Turn to Page Nine)

NEGRO ARTIST OBJECTS TO RACE SEGREGATION

Kansas City, Feb. 18—(P)—Paul Robeson, negro baritone, presented the second half of his concert last night with a lecture against race segregation and told his audience he was continuing under protest.

Some white listeners immediately left the auditorium and others followed throughout the remainder of the program.

As the singer opened the second half of his program he said he regretted to interrupt a concert to make a speech, but:

"I have made a life-long habit to refuse to sing in southern states or anywhere that audiences are segregated. I accepted this engagement under guarantee that there would be no segregation."

"Since many local leaders of my own race have urged me to fill this engagement, I shall finish the concert, but I am doing so under protest."

Accompanying him on the tour were Major General James E. Chaney, commander of United States forces in the British Isles, and Major General Russell P. Hartle, commander of the North Ireland forces.

"A group of good American boys right now are face to face with a grim, determined, well-equipped enemy. They're taking punishment and the spirit that has always animated American troops. More Than Two Thousand Register
For Selective Service In County

Registrations for possible military service in Warren county on Monday by men from 20 to 44 years of age totaled 2,243, it was announced by members of the two local selective service boards. The total was somewhat under the number expected, it was stated to-day.

Of the men registered, 1,195 were in the district of Local Board No. 1 and the remaining 1,048 in the area of Local Board No. 2.

Clerks of both boards were engaged today in sorting the cards of the registrants in preparation for the classification of the men for possible duty with the nation's armed forces.

Members of both boards have expressed appreciation to all those who assisted with Monday's registration.

A complete list of those who assisted in the district of Local Board No. 1 was announced to-day. Those in Local Board No. 2 will be printed later.

Those who worked on the various boards in the Local Board No. 1 district are as follows:

PALEMBANG

Streaming, tropical Palembang, occupied by Japanese forces over the weekend, was one of the chief military objectives in the big, rich island of Sumatra, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"A normally busy river port, with rail and air communications, the city is an odd combination of modern enterprise and native picturesqueness," the bulletin points out.

Much of Palembang is built on high poles, as a protection against general dampness, flood waters, and the many insects that infest the lowlying, swampy regions of southeastern Sumatra. Some of the houses actually stand in the waters of River Moesi while many natives live and even operate shops on river boats and rafts.

"Palembang, sprawling on both sides of the river about 60 miles from the coast, is so narrow that it has been called a town of length without breadth. Its peace-time population was estimated at from 60,000 to 110,000. Most of the people are Mohammedans, the result of early Arab trade and settlement. Before the outbreak of today's Asiatic war, less than two per cent of the population was composed of Europeans.

"Both its location and activities made Palembang significant as a military objective. It is not only the first port and capital of the Palembang district, but also is the terminus of Sumatra's only railway. This railway connects Palembang with Teloekbetoeng, on the other side of the island, a port which is less than 150 air miles from the Netherlands Indies capital of Batavia as well as suggested headquarters of the Allied war effort. Palembang itself is only about 250 miles northwest of Batavia."

At the bottom of this column today appears the first "Daily War-Time Lenten Meditation" which will appear daily until Easter. They are being written by religious leaders in the borough and county, and we feel, in these dark days of conflict, will provide comforting inspiration to readers seeking spiritual guidance and uplift.

Warren this morning bid farewell to the first county group of Selective Service men to be called since war was declared in December, and it was a serious-minded gathering of determined young men who boarded the train for an induction center.

Governor James, in his message to the state legislature last evening asked for a "brief, harmonious and cooperative special session!" All in favor of the idea say "aye!"

After what Ickes had to say to that house committee in Washington yesterday it would appear that we may just as well prepare for a gas rationing order any time.

Rationing of sugar causes beekeepers in Warren county and the rest of the nation to predict that this year will be a honey.

A balmy, sun-shiny day like this makes one feel that spring housecleaning is just around the corner.

That dust nuisance is back again, and how!

Daily War-time Lenten Sermonette

"LENTEN MEDITATION"

Bertil Edquist, St. Paul's Lutheran Church

"Behold, we go up to Jerusalem."—Mark 10:33.

This journey meant suffering for Jesus, brutal treatment at the hands of men, unjust condemnation, and death upon the cross. It meant also that after three days He would rise again from the dead. Wherever observed, however, the emphasis during the Lenten season is upon the Cross of Christ, and in our thought during these days the suffering of the Master is uppermost. It is a sobering season. We feel that the shadow of the Cross is upon us.

During these days when there is so much of suffering 'round about us, and its shadows are also upon us, this season can be very precious indeed. If we use it as a time for becoming better acquainted with the Man of Suffering; of walking more closely with Him, of learning more surely the deep meaning of Calvary, it can be the most profitable we have ever spent. As we enter this season so sacred in the hearts of many, let us do it with the prayer that we in spirit walk once again to Jerusalem, and may we there learn from the Master how to meet suffering and trials, and, best of all, see in Him the Redeemer of the world.

EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

This is the last of a series discussing the war's impact on U. S. automobile civilization.

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 18—Dislocation of the automobile industry itself is only the first step on this downward trend of America's pre-war civilization on wheels. Loss of jobs by 200,000 or more automobile factory workers, while the plants are retooling, is temporary. They'll all get other and perhaps better jobs in war plants.

The real blow comes below the manufacturing level, hitting the 40,000 or more dealers with their 300,000 employees, the 55,000 repair establishments, the 95,000 other retail outlets—only a few of which will be able to keep going in a business run on a rationing basis.

The industry is certain to be run on a rationing basis. Cars, buses, trucks, tires and retreading are already rationed. When present stocks are sold, that will be all.

From this point on, the troubles begin to spread. Nine out of 10 dealers and their employees may have to find other work.

Their troubles are passed on to the real estate operators who hold the leases of the automobile dealers who go out of business. These landlords must find new tenants. The tenants must find ways to terminate any long-term leases. Parking lots are included in this business, too.

Banks or insurance companies holding any mortgages on the rented properties face a loss of interest while the premises are vacant. Banks holding commercial paper from the lessees may have to look to their collateral for settlement if they avoid heavy losses.

Finance companies which carried the car owner during the purchase period will collect their last installments and then have to look elsewhere to invest their money.

One new field may open up here, the financing of used car purchases. There is a possibility of some turnover and some new business in the used car market, though what may happen here hasn't developed clearly. Owners of old used cars may create a buyers' demand for better used cars just to acquire better tires. If that happens, watch first for price ceilings for used cars as well as new, and watch next for rationing of used cars. Yet, it's possible you may have to get permission to buy a second-hand jalopy. You'll have to prove you need it.

So, until restrictions are put on the used car market, there is the possibility that the finance companies, which once scorned a loan for used car purchase, may get into the second-hand car business. It is to ease the financial burdens on all these upsets to normal business that Reconstruction Finance Corporation may make available some $150 million to tide the dealers over the war period by loans that private banks can't make.

Your chain of consequences leads next into the fields of taxation. Last year, Congress passed a whole new flock of automobile taxes, figuring this source of revenue would yield another $245 million to help pay war costs. But all these taxes were calculated on normal car use. With production of motor vehicles channeled into war, these taxes are cut way down.

Furthermore, state and local automobile tax collections face a drop. The total of all automobile taxes, federal and local, has been estimated by the American Automobile Association at $800 million a year. The net indicated loss of auto and gas taxes for next year is about $250 million. This means that $250 million in war taxes will make up the difference.

we to be raised some place else. Drop in auto taxation, drop in automobile use means also a decrease in state funds for highway maintenance since most of the money for this work comes from gasoline taxes and license fees. The roads you ride upon, therefore, won't be as good as the roads you are used to.

In the whole motoring world there is only one really bright patch; there is no gasoline shortage yet. The quality of gasoline has been reduced little, ratings of 80 and 72 octane grades having been dropped to 76 and 68 because of a lead shortage and in order to increase production of 100 octane gas for aircraft.

Tanker diversion, increased sinking of tankers, might affect the supply in some areas. And gas might have to be rationed just to save rubber later on. Secretary Ickes was hatching a rationing plan during the gas shortage scare last summer, and this egg might be pulled out of the Ickes henhouse as an emergency measure if the crisis demanded.

Liquefied gases for fuel, mostly obtained as a by-product of Germany's coal hydrogenation plants, are being used successfully. At the end of 1939 about 40,000 German motor trucks were operating on this compressed fuel.

A MOMENT later he disappeared. They could follow his steps down the trail to the beach where the sounds were swallowed up in deep sand.

Sharon glanced at Goodwin awaiting the signal to move. Slowly, he stood up, moved out onto the trail. Then, as if waiting for a signal, he stood listening.

The answer came shortly. The soft, muffled puttputt of an outboard motor. Just discernible at first, then fainter and fainter as the boat drew away from the shore.

When the last sound of the motor faded into the distance, Goodwin finally spoke.

"We just beat Stafford's man, didn't we?"

"Stafford's man! That—tramp?"

Goodwin only smiled. "That was no tramp, my little 'believe' Tramps don't ride in motor boats. Tramps don't get this far away from civilization! That casual stranger was sent here by your friend Tom to check on what it was you'd discovered yesterday."

"But, I tell you Tom did not see this cabin. I—I faked a sprained ankle and distracted his attention."

"Maybe you faked the sprain, my dear, but that probably only made him more certain you were hiding something." He shook his head. "You have a lot to learn about this spy business, Sharon."

"I wonder now," she said, watching him slip the automatic back into his pocket. "that you ever thought I could be of help."

"Did you have been of help, my dear?" He took her hand. "More than you'll ever know, perhaps."

"I'm glad, then. But now, hadn't we?"

Goodwin only drew her closer. "And you have nothing to learn about being charming."

Alarmed, Sharon was suddenly aware of the loneliness of the spot, its inaccessibility, her own dependence upon her husband's safety. Harvey Goodwin, she realized with new-found insight, was not just discovering her "charm."

Nor was he any more interested in her romantically than he was that snub-nosed automatic he carried! But he was using his flattery, his smooth manners as a weapon to ward off her pursuit of his secret. Because somewhere behind all the half-truths about her secret maps, his disbelief of her story, his alarm at the appearance of the stranger—somewhere lay the whole truth.

And obviously, he did not intend she should discover that secret! He still did not trust her completely.

Sharon challenged his smooth advance with a cool, "If Tom's man has gone back to report, shouldn't we go too?"

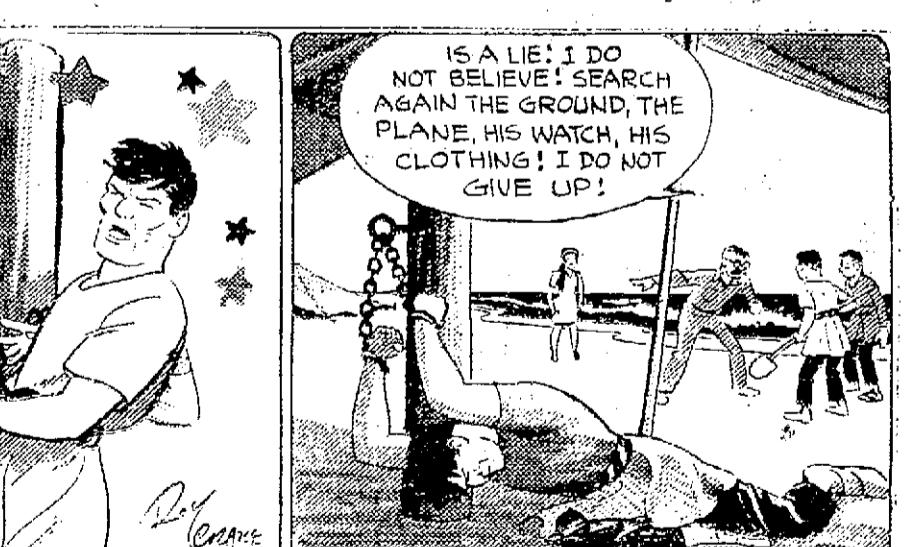

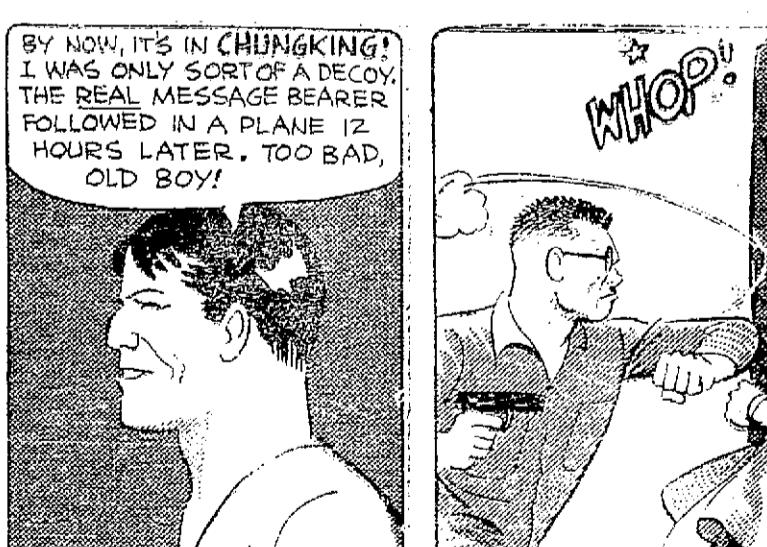

"Since there's nothing to report," Goodwin shrugged, still holding her hands firmly in his grip, "there is no hurry."

Her heart plumping, she felt his arm tighten around her.

Chapter 18

The Mackinaw Man

"WHY—they're gone!" Hardly believing her own eyes, Sharon pushed past Mr. Goodwin, stepped into the cabin.

"If they ever were here," he smiled wryly.

"But they were here, I tell you. I saw them myself," she insisted hotly. "There must be some mistake. I have the wrong cabin. But no—" she ran to the window. "There's where I wedged this window shut when I closed it yesterday. It's the same cabin all right!" She faced him. "Someone has been here in the meantime."

And instantly she remembered the fresh footprints, the broken grass on the trail. The "someone" must have been nearby right at the time she and the little dog were discovering the cabin. Perhaps—and she shuddered at the thought—perhaps that had lain hidden in those shrubs just outside, watching her!

"Someone moved it all out. They must have seen me," she pursued her thoughts aloud.

"Moved the fishing tackle, maybe, but you must have dreamed those packing cases," he shrugged. "Any idea what those cases weigh?" Just how many men it would take to move a whole shipmet?"

"No, but—"

"And what good would it do anyone to conceal the stuff here?"

"To ship it out again, of course. There's a pier down there on the beach. We noticed that 'new timer'—"

"That pier hasn't been used since the 'rumrunners' came in here. Surely, you knew that?"

"Yes—but—"

"I knew you must be mistaken," he went on. "I only wanted you to prove it to yourself." He shrugged, glanced around the empty room. "If there had been a truckload of valves here, it would have taken more than one small cruiser to carry it off."

Sharon doubted that. But she held her tongue because, without being able to analyze the reason, she knew she had come smartly up against a stone wall. Mr. Goodwin didn't want to believe her. Nothing she could say would convince him now.

"Don't look so deflated, darling," he laughed, and drawing her closer, would have put his arms about her.

But, evading him skillfully, Sharon turned back to the open door, ran down the creaking steps. There, new evidence convinced her she hadn't dreamed this all up.

"Look," she called over her shoulder. "All these footprints. These weren't here yesterday. This shrubbery wasn't trampled like this."

Goodwin stood in the doorway, watching her, his expression baffling in his disbelief. "Fishermen have big feet, maybe."

"But fishermen don't use torn nets and broken, dirty tackle," Sharon snapped angrily. "Neither do they drag their gear back and forth from an inaccessible cabin in the middle of the season."

"Perhaps you are right, Sharon," he said dryly. "Never having been a fisherman, I wouldn't know."

Drawing the blue envelope from his coat pocket, he unfolded the contents, spread them out on the top step. "Look here, a moment."

The Stranger

OVER his shoulder, Sharon saw a tiny replica of the large pictorial maps of the Pacific area that lined the walls of Goodwin's library. No—not exact replicas, she noticed almost immediately. Because in place of the artistic drawings of flora and fauna, these maps showed numbers in red and blue and yellow.

"Did you ever notice the maps in my study?" Goodwin asked quietly.

"Yes, I have," —and waited.

"Those maps—like these—give a great deal of valuable information if you understand how to read them."

"Yes?" Was this one of the valuable secrets that would make dangerous baggage, she wondered.

The information contained on the maps hung in my library is in code, of course," he went on, calmly. "These are more obvious. Few people are privileged to see these."

She looked up, found his eyes on her, his lips twisted a little. Her heart picked up speed alarmingly.

"Why do you show them to me now?"

"Because I want to show you what a very poor spot this would be for smuggling."

Sharon frowned. "Smuggling?"

He nodded toward the now empty cabin. "These imaginary boxes you thought you saw being carried out by imaginary fishermen in disguise must have course been smuggled out, mustn't they?"

Flushing, Sharon didn't answer. Her doubt made her distrust her own senses, her own memory now!

He turned again to the maps. "The red numbers indicate coast guard stations. The blue numbers, army posts. The yellow numbers, local police units. The numbers themselves indicate approximate strength in terms of man-power, ammunition, intelligence forces and so on."

Amazed, Sharon poured over the maps. The tiny cove where they were now, was but a tiny

BRADFORD PRESSED FOR HALF BEFORE TIPPING DRAGONS

Urbanski and Wright Play Major Roles; 49-28 Score Hides Story of Encounter

FAIR OR FOUL?

A game that will leave the capacity crowd of fans which saw it likely to remember number of years from now as they scan the pages of the history of the Northern League, was played on the court last night between the newest Warren High school basketball team you'd ever want to see, and a desperate Bradford High outfit that was worried badly and often for a good portion of the contest.

Thirty-nine fouls, however, tore the heart right out of the battle royal, and left both sides staggering under the power of the blows they dealt, and before the fracas was over, no less than five players three of them Dragon hoopers, had gone to the sidelines not to return because they'd reached their quota in personals.

Coach "Heinic" Kolpjen's charges needn't be a bit downcast today after losing by a 49-28 point because, while that's a margin of 21 points it doesn't truly tell how hard they pressed the defending champion Owls for honor before the boat in which the hopes of the Dragons were riding capsized midway in the last half.

In the first quarter the locals held Bradford to a 10-9 margin.

Bradford-Berry 4, Fisina 3, Ebyham 2, Fling 4, Moffatt 2, Walker, Witchen 3.

WARREN-Smith 4, Lunquist 2, Nelson 2, Wright 4, Buerkle, Urbanski 4, Hammerbeck 2, Matthews.

Referee—Abele, Erie.

RUSSELL BEATS GROVE TO TAKE LOOP COMMAND

Russell, Feb. 18—Taking the lead in the Upper Allegheny League last night, the Russell High school was momentarily with the Owls. But Moffatt split the strings from his moff, Urbanski countered again with a basket from way out for Warren, and after Barry added two foul shots, Smith sent one through the hoop for Warren as the quarter ended.

In the second period, Warren's attack backfired, but seven gift opportunities at the foul line weren't ignored and they made their only four points. Fling came in on his own, however, wrapped up 10 points, and his mates collected three more, leaving the Bracemen ahead 19-18 at halftime.

But it was the straw that the Owls dropped on the Dragons in the third canto that really broke their backs. Moffatt put on a one-man show and when the smoke had cleared the stellar visiting guard had 10 of the sixteen points he made last night. Five more in that quarter by his mates provided a 10-point margin going into the final stanza, one which brought the turning point once and for all.

In the last quarter Moffatt and Barry, the latter with nine points, provided the burst of the attack as the Owls scored 15 more counters and Warren was whitewashed. Jim Urbanski should be regarded as the outstanding local player from the field, but plenty of praise also should be sent the way of Bob Wright who, toeing the foul line a dozen times, kept the Dragons in the tussle for long time as he made nine of those tries.

As for Bradford, Moffatt was outstanding, but the remainder of the squad wasn't up to par, or else had the daylights scared so completely out of them through the first half that they didn't play the heady ball of which they're capable. McLean made the winning basket for Warren.

SERVO BATTERS LEW JENKINS IN PHILLY TUSSLE

BY TED MEIER

Philadelphia, Feb. 18—(P)—Marty Servo, family honor revenged by his savage pasting of Lew Jenkins last night, now is gunning for Red Cochrane and the world's welterweight championship.

"Marty had trouble getting below 140 pounds for this fight," declared Al Weil, Servo's manager after the young coast guardsman from Schenectady, N. Y., virtually blasted the ring career of the former lightweight titlist by winning a decisive 10-round decision at the arena.

"He'll never be able to make the weight again," Weil continued. "He wants to fight Cochrane now for the welterweight crown. He's the coming champ, I tell you. This was his 47th fight. In all these bouts he has lost only to Ray 'Sugar' Robinson."

Servo is a cousin of Lou Ambers who absorbed a terrific three-round beating before dropping the lightweight crown to Jenkins. With Ambers watching from the ringside, Servo gave the Sweetwater Tex, swatter one of the worst beatings of his career.

From the very start Servo, constantly moving forward and landing "one, two" punches with lefts to the head and rights to the body, battered the Texan around the ring. He had Jenkins reeling in nearly every round, but the form-boy who dropped his crown to Sammy Angott a few months back managed to stay upright except near the end of the seventh. Then he went down for a count of nine from a savage left hook.

At the end Jenkins' face was a gory red from cuts over both eyes, a bloody nose and bruised lips. Servo's only mark was a scratch on his cheek. Jenkins: didn't win a single round.

Promoter Herman Taylor announced attendance as 6,906 and the net gate $9,361. Servo weighed 138 1/2 to Jenkins' 134 1/4.

Jim Akeley and Jerry Parks, with 11 and eight points respectively, led the winners, who had to come through in the last half to overcome a Grove lead and take the decision.

In the second period, Warren's attack backfired, but seven gift opportunities at the foul line weren't ignored and they made their only four points. Fling came in on his own, however, wrapped up 10 points, and his mates collected three more, leaving the Bracemen ahead 19-18 at halftime.

But it was the straw that the Owls dropped on the Dragons in the third canto that really broke their backs. Moffatt put on a one-man show and when the smoke had cleared the stellar visiting guard had 10 of the sixteen points he made last night. Five more in that quarter by his mates provided a 10-point margin going into the final stanza, one which brought the turning point once and for all.

In the last quarter Moffatt and Barry, the latter with nine points, provided the burst of the attack as the Owls scored 15 more counters and Warren was whitewashed. Jim Urbanski should be regarded as the outstanding local player from the field, but plenty of praise also should be sent the way of Bob Wright who, toeing the foul line a dozen times, kept the Dragons in the tussle for long time as he made nine of those tries.

As for Bradford, Moffatt was outstanding, but the remainder of the squad wasn't up to par, or else had the daylights scared so completely out of them through the first half that they didn't play the heady ball of which they're capable. McLean made the winning basket for Warren.

Providing consolation to a designing "one, two" punch with lefts to the head and rights to the body, battered the Texan around the ring. He had Jenkins reeling in nearly every round, but the form-boy who dropped his crown to Sammy Angott a few months back managed to stay upright except near the end of the seventh. Then he went down for a count of nine from a savage left hook.

At the end Jenkins' face was a gory red from cuts over both eyes, a bloody nose and bruised lips. Servo's only mark was a scratch on his cheek. Jenkins: didn't win a single round.

LOCAL BOYS IN BIBLE CONTEST OF STATE "Y"

Ten members of the Warren H. Club are included in a large group throughout the state who are participating in the state-wide Bible study project of the State Y. M. C. A. It was announced to director of the local association today by T. F. Eppley, boys' work.

The text, "Gateways to Freedom", is helping young people think through this philosophy of life in time of war, he said.

The local classes are held with a dinner meeting each Wednesday evening at six o'clock. They will continue until March 22, when an examination is held.

The State Y. M. C. A. awards prizes to groups and schools making exceptional records of achievement in the project.

Although there are 364 groups containing 11,684 boys and girls in the program.

Warren boys in the group are

Thirty-three Girl Scout council members and leaders met in the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday evening to form Girl Scout Troop 100, to be composed of all adult volunteers men and women working for Girl Scouting in Warren county.

The program included the making of trench candles under the direction of Mrs. Ann McManus and songs taught by Miss Hulda Angermann. Mrs. R. W. Mackay, newly elected commissioner reported on the council training course she attended at Williamsburg, Va.

Mrs. Karl Nichols, Juabet Low chairman for this county, told of plans for the collection of pennies for this fund in March. The international committee of the National Girl Scout organization has set aside a sum of money to be used in helping Girl Scouts of other lands who find themselves in within a city.

The Census Bureau warns careless "Sunday drivers" that 40 per cent of all accidents which kill city residents actually occur on rural highways. Only one out of every 10 fatal crashes involving a driver from a rural area occurs in a city.

Motor oil thinned with condensation and from long mileage won't form a good seal between cylinder and piston walls. Change regularly for less engine wear and maximum mileage.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE First and Partial Account, and the Second and Final Account of Frank C. Hesch, Receiver of the Riverside Acid Works, will be presented to the Court of Common Pleas of Warren County, Pennsylvania, for confirmation, on the Twenty-fifth day of February, 1942, at ten o'clock A. M., at which time and place said Accounts will be allowed unless cause be shown to the contrary.
